Choosing a consistent text edition. Compare the student's page with the tutor's screen before relying on line numbers. The same passage may be laid out differently across books or apps. Save the edition details in the lesson note and check whether the next assignment opens to the intended place.

Keeping revision separate from new work. Put one familiar item and one new item on the lesson card. Give each its own turn so difficulty with new material does not hide what the learner already remembers. Return to the familiar item after a short break and record how much prompting it required.

For the next session, keep one activity familiar and change the example in the quran online tajweed for kids other. This makes it easier to see which skill the learner can use independently.
