A venue tour is your best chance to learn what a space is really like, but it is easy to get swept up in the view and forget to ask the practical questions. Bringing a short list with you keeps the conversation focused and helps you compare venues fairly. Here is a set of questions that works well for couples touring farm venues around Roanoke and Botetourt County.

First, ask about capacity and setup. How many guests can the space hold, and what furniture is included? At Bailey Wick Farm Wedding & Event Venue in Fincastle, the venue says the barn can hold up to 300 people and provides tables and chairs for up to 200, so you can ask how those numbers translate to your preferred layout.

Second, ask about the wedding venues near me rain plan and climate control. Is the indoor space heated and air conditioned, and how quickly can a ceremony be moved inside? The barn here has both heating and air conditioning, and reviewers have shared stories of rainy days that still went perfectly.

Logistics Worth Clarifying

Ask when you can arrive to decorate, who handles setup and cleanup, and where vendors will park and unload. Find out whether there is a kitchen area for catering, how many restrooms are available and where the wedding party will get ready. Bailey Wick Farm offers two dressing rooms and a kitchen area, but every couple should confirm the details for their own date.

Finally, ask about lodging and directions for out-of-town guests. The farm's website links to two Airbnb stays, the Fincastle Retreat and the Covington River House, and many guests stay in Roanoke or Daleville. Ask how guests typically find the venue, since rural roads can confuse GPS.

Questions About the Space Itself

Ask the family which parts of the property are most popular for ceremonies, where couples usually take portraits and how the barn is typically arranged for dinner and dancing. Find out where the fire pit and pavilion sit in relation to the barn, and ask about lighting for evening events. Seeing how past couples used the porch, the pavilion and the open fields will help you picture your own day and make a confident decision.
